CONRAD GIRL REFUSES OFFER OF BAIL TO STAY IN JAIL WITH HER CHUM

Mother Says Miss Graham Exerts Hypnotic Influence to Keep Daughter From Accepting an Iowa Theatrical Man's Offer.

Following her third arraignment before Magistrate Freschl in the West Side Court to-day and the reduction of her bail from $25,000 to $15,000, Ethel Conrad, younger of the two show girls who shot W. E. D. Stokes last Wednesday, rejected the offer of an "angel" to bail her out and resisted the entreaties of her mother and brother to leave her prison cell and the company of her chum, Lillian Graham.

For all their efforts to get her out of jail, Mrs. Charles Nagle, the girl's mother, who is now living with her second husband at No. 831 East One Hundred and Seventy-ninth street, declared that her daughter was under a hypnotic influence exerted by her fellow prisoner. The mother said she had been under this influence for months and that she and her son had sought in vain to break it. "I would send her back to the convent," she said.

"If we could only get her out of jail and bring her home," said Mrs. Nagle, "we would send her back to the convent which she left little more than a year ago."

"The influence of this Graham woman has been her ruin," said Mrs. Nagle, "and she will not see it and our tears and entreaties are unavailing. My daughter is only eighteen years old and not nineteen as reported. Why only a year ago we regarded her as a school girl."

Not only did Miss Conrad spurn the generous offer of an angel, but she rejected in court the services of Herman Phillips, the counsel her mother engaged directly after her arrest.

It was Mr. Phillips who brought the angel into the case and he revealed himself to-day in the person of E. P. Elbert of Des Moines, Ia., owner of the Unique, Princess, Berche and Majestic theatres in that city.

In the office of Mr. Phillips at No. 1123 Broadway Mr. Elbert showed a communication from the offices of the United States Prison and Penitentiary Company of this city to the effect that they would furnish a $25,000 bond for Miss Conrad upon her request.

HAD THE $25,000 BOND READY YESTERDAY.

"I was ready to furnish this bond yesterday," said the Des Moines man, "but the young lady rejected the offer. My only interest in her plight is due to my friendship for her lawyer, Mr. Phillips. I still stand ready to supply her bond, but I will not put up a bond for the other young woman."

"I will not leave Lillian," replied the young prisoner to her mother and brother, who visited her in her cell. "I cannot be furnished for her. I would stay here in prison with her. I would rather be with her in jail than without her outside." And that was the last word on the subject that could be drawn from the stubborn young woman.

When the two prisoners were arraigned again to-day they succeeded in getting their bail reduced to $15,000 in each case after much bickering between counsel and the intimation on the part of the new attorneys for the prisoners that Mr. Stokes had visited their apartment in the Varuna in the role of a burglar and was shot in the act of a burglarious invasion.

ROW OVER APPEARANCE OF PHILLIPS.
The proceedings started off with a row over Mr. Phillips's appearance in the case. Calling the lawyer to the bar, Magistrate Freschl asked him: "Is it not true that Miss Conrad wishes to release you as her counsel?"

"I have been retained by Miss Conrad's mother," replied Phillips. "I have a written retainer and I intend to stick." "Isn't that retainer revocable?" asked the court.

"Yes, but it hasn't been revoked," retorted the lawyer.
"Don't you think that the ethics of the profession call upon you to retire?" "Yes, but this girl is a minor and does

SEAMEN STRIKERS CLAIM A VICTORY IN LESS THAN DAY

Cunard and Other Big Lines Agree to Confer With Union Leaders.

GOVERNMENT IS AIDING.

Official Pressure at Liverpool to Bring About a Compromise.

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—With the strike of the seamen to enforce their demands for more humane treatment, shorter hours and better working conditions less than twenty-four hours old, the union leaders are already claiming victory. They base this assertion on the action of the officials of the Cunard, Houth, Holt and Elder-Dempster steamship companies in agreeing to receive a committee representing the unions. Heretofore when the men have tried to see the employers to ask for changes in working conditions they were turned away.

Government officials are bringing pressure to bear to have the companies compromise with the men. The outlook for settlement is bright, although the White Star line, after making concessions which permitted them to clear the giant Olympic, is now trying to engage a non-union crew to take the Baltic out on Saturday.

Officers of the union say that as fast as the big liners come in the men will quit work. All, however, will complete the trip for which they have signed, so that none of the steamers whose home port this is will be interfered with elsewhere.

Tom Mann, vice-president of the seamen's union, is in the city and will quit work. He said to-day that not only will the seamen strike, but that the majority of the dock employees and longshoremen will take advantage of the opportunity to demand better wages and improved conditions of labor. The union men say they will not oppose this, as the employers cannot get competent men, and passengers will not risk their lives sailing in vessels manned by incompetents.

SOUTHAMPTON, June 14.—The general strike of seamen, called by the international organization, began to-day, although the International Seamen's Union issued a proclamation this afternoon stating that the signal for an international strike would not be given until the morning of the 15th. The strike was declared at Liverpool and at some of the other British ports and on the continent this morning.

Havelock Wilson, in charge of the strike headquarters here, and the other leaders say that one reason why the strike did not assume formidable proportions here at the outset was that many of the men misunderstood the exact time to quit. He also explained that because the strike leaders had determined to leave no loophole for an appeal to the courts by the shipping federation, all union men had been instructed to fulfill their contracts before deserting their employment.

Ship owners here insist that they are not apprehensive of the outcome. They admit they will be unable to keep their ships running on schedule at the start, but declare that they will have all of the men they need within a very short time. They say that the men are not well organized and also that the general feeling among the older men is against the strike.

Despite the recent efforts of the strike leaders to hold her up, the Olympic of the White Star Line, the largest steamer afloat, got away from Southampton on her maiden voyage to New York early this afternoon.

ANTWERP, June 14.—Representatives of the ship owners and the seamen's union conferred with the burgomaster to-day in an effort to settle the strike of the seamen and firemen which started to-day. The Red Star Line, Finland and the German Steamer Marquette are tied up. Other steamers are expected to be affected within the next twenty-four hours.

Niece of Carnegie and Husband Who Are Now Once More United

Mrs. Nancy Carnegie Hever, favorite niece of Andrew Carnegie, who after a two years' separation is living happily with her husband, James Hever, in a beautiful villa in the fashionable Baywater section of Far Rockaway, said to-day:

"We are all together again and that is the whole story. There never was a legal separation, nor any thought of one. Family reasons made it necessary for me to live in Pittsburgh, while Mr. Hever's condition made it necessary for him to remain in New York. We were in constant communication."

James Hever sipped with Miss Nancy Carnegie in 1904 while he was employed by her mother as a riding instructor. When Andrew Carnegie made the announcement of the secret marriage he coupled it with the remark that it was much better than having a worthless duke in the family.

JACK JOHNSON SMASHES HIS AUTO; LONDON CHEERS

Pugilist Also Wrecks Wagon, but Makes Amends by Scattering His Wealth.

LONDON, June 14.—The second day of Jack Johnson's sightseeing stay in London wound up to-day with an automobile crash in the East End, in which the colored champion's machine was badly smashed. Neither Johnson nor any of the friends with him was hurt, but the police took the names of all in the party, alleging that Johnson was exceeding the speed limit. This Johnson denies.

"I guess these fellows over here have heard that it is customary to arrest me for something," Johnson said, "and so they want to be in style."

Johnson and his friends started out shortly after lunch to-day and the big black continued to attract the greatest attention. The machine, one of the two that Johnson brought over with him, stopped in front of a number of cafes at every one of which the party dined. By the time the East End was reached all the men were in a merry mood.

Charles Brown, Johnson's imported chauffeur, was at the wheel when the auto ran into a heavy wagon. Johnson plucked the wealthy driver by slipping a handful of money to him. He didn't even stop to count the sum. Then to show that he was a noble sportsman Johnson tossed several handfuls of silver coins to the crowd of youngsters that had gathered. A passing taxicab picked up the pugilist and his friends. As they entered the taxi the crowd set up a great cheer.

ARREST POLICEMAN FOR SHOOTING HIS FIANCEE'S MOTHER

Pistol Expert's Report Causes Detention of Young Delaney on Assault Charge.

ACCIDENT, HE INSISTS.

X-Ray Examination of Wound Will Be Made to Prove Truth of Story.

Inspector John H. Russell to-day directed the arrest of Policeman John J. Delaney of the East Twenty-second street station on a charge of felonious assault for the alleged shooting of Mrs. Della Lufburrow, aged forty-seven, of No. 146 West Sixty-fourth street. The report of Lieut. William Jones, revolver expert for the Police Department, upon the shooting of the woman led to the order from the inspector.

The sending of the revolver expert followed the receipt of a report from Detective McCormick, in which that detective said that so many contradictory statements had been made as to how the woman was shot that further investigation was necessary.

Mrs. Lufburrow is in the Harlem Hospital with a serious wound in her right thigh, two inches above the hip bone. The bullet took an upward course and lodged in the abdominal cavity.

The police report of the shooting at made by Helen Lufburrow, makes it appear that she was accidentally shot by John J. Delaney, a policeman attached to the East Twenty-second street station who is a boarder at the Lufburrow home and who is engaged to marry the daughter.

Although Helen Lufburrow refused to-day to make any statement to reporters, she told Detective McCormick, Sullivan and Jones that she was in the house with her mother yesterday afternoon when the shooting took place. She said that Delaney had gone to bed, leaving his pistol on the dresser. Her mother went into the room and knocked the revolver from the dresser and it was discharged, the bullet striking Mrs. Lufburrow.

X-RAY TO TRACE COURSE OF THE BULLET.

The detectives did not try to reconcile the statement with others of a different tenor. It was stated that an X-ray examination would be made at the hospital to determine the course of the bullet and see whether it would be possible for the wound to have been inflicted from a revolver that had fallen to the floor.

After Delaney had denied any knowledge of the shooting to his superiors, he said at 5:15 o'clock to-day that he left his pistol on a sideboard in a bedroom of the Lufburrow home yesterday afternoon and that it fell to the floor, exploded and shot the woman.

This explanation, coming more than twelve hours after the woman was shot, did not satisfy the higher officials of the Police Department. The delay in making the report and the conflict of statements on the part of those interested created much doubt as to the accuracy of the policeman's statement.

When asked why he didn't make a report earlier, Delaney said he didn't want the matter to become public. He was permitted to return to his post.

Mrs. Lufburrow lives on the fifth floor of the house with her husband, John, a roofer, her daughter, Helen, twenty, and her son Alex, seventeen. Policeman Delaney has always lived with the family, but is not a relative.

SHOOTING WAS REPORTED BY A DOCTOR.

Although Mrs. Lufburrow was shot about 4 P. M. yesterday and was taken to the hospital about 6 o'clock, the police knew nothing about it until Dr. B. Allen of No. 150 West Sixty-fourth street, called at the West Sixty-eighth street station about 11:15 last night and said he thought a report ought to be made on the case. He said the wound was made with a .38 calibre pistol, and that he understood it was the result of an accident on part of Policeman Delaney.

Lieut. Quinn and two policemen were sent to the house, but for a long time couldn't get in. When they finally gained admission, the Lufburrow family said they understood it was the result of an accident on part of Policeman Delaney. As they entered the taxi the crowd set up a great cheer.

UPROAR IN ASSEMBLY AS MEMBER CLINCHES IN FIGHT ON FLOOR

Goldstein of Kings Tackles Sergeant-at-Arms When He Is Forced Into His Seat by Order of Speaker Frisbie.

ASSEMBLYMEN AROUND PREVENT FIST SMASHING.

Oliver in the Mixup, Which Is Started by Charge That Brooklyn Bank Bill Is Blocked.

ALBANY, June 14.—There was an uproar in the Assembly this afternoon when Assemblyman Goldstein of Kings got into a row with Sergeant-at-Arms O'Neill on the floor of the House, and a lively bout with fists was only averted by the interference of members. The two men who were in a clinch, were separated and order finally restored.

The Assemblyman had charged Speaker Frisbie with having held up his bill providing for a legislative investigation of the affairs of the failed Union Bank of Brooklyn, which, he said, was reported from the Rules Committee, of which the Speaker is Chairman, last Wednesday. He had risen to a question of personal privilege and was reading a statement when a point of order was raised by Assemblyman Oliver that Goldstein was discussing the affairs of the bank and not personal privileges. Goldstein continued to read the statement and was ordered by the Speaker to take his seat.

Speaker Frisbie began rapping with his gavel, while there were cries from those sitting near Goldstein to "Let him go on!"

Mr. Goldstein insisted that Speaker Frisbie was holding up the resolution in order that he might first consult the State Superintendent of Banks. He wanted to know if the Assembly did not have the right to have his resolution on the floor for definite action.

Assemblyman Goldstein then proceeded to read a long list of charges against the Union Bank, which, it is understood, Mr. Goldstein has already aired in some of the Brooklyn newspapers. He had just started on his revelations when Assemblyman Oliver raised a point of order. Speaker Frisbie rapped his gavel again and again. Oliver was in the centre aisle calling at the top of his voice for recognition, while Goldstein in a high tenor was reading on and fairly yelling the contents of the documents he read from.

Finally Speaker Frisbie ordered the Sergeant-at-Arms to seat Mr. Goldstein. P. J. O'Neill of Bay Shore, Suffolk County, a husky doorkeeper, was taking the Sergeant-at-Arms's place. He went to Goldstein and urged him to be seated. Goldstein kept on reading or yelling his charge against the Union Bank.

LOOKED LIKE A FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT ON THE FLOOR.
Finally O'Neill grabbed Goldstein about the neck and the two fell struggling into Goldstein's seat. Practically all of the Democratic members rushed at once to where the struggling was and for a minute it looked as though a free-for-all fight would ensue and the Assembly would break up in a riot.

Majority Leader Smith got into the midst of the fray and demanded the immediate return to their seats of all members. Goldstein got up and, brushing himself off, again resumed his reading.

Speaker Frisbie insisted again that Goldstein should desist long enough to hear Mr. Oliver's point of order. This was done and the Speaker ruled the point not well taken. Goldstein's friends applauded. Mr. Oliver was still on his feet and there were cries from the Democratic side of "Sit down, Oliver, or we'll throw you out!"

Mr. Oliver defied all hands and insisted that he should be heard. He was quieted, and Speaker Frisbie told Goldstein to sit down. As he liked with his accusations against the bank, Assemblyman Hoey squared things between the doorkeeper and Goldstein, when the former apologized and the House got back to a sane procedure and Goldstein finished his formal statement.

Speaker Frisbie announced that he had laid the investigating resolution at the instruction of the Rules Committee. He had consulted the State Superintendent of Banks and expected to hear from the latter to-day as to the course he would take in regard to an investigation of the bank in question. Speaker Frisbie insisted that there was no cause for alarm or suspicion, that the matter would be handled speedily.

Assemblyman Goldstein's document was a petition from depositors of the Union Bank of Brooklyn calling for immediate legislative investigation of the affairs of the defunct Union Bank of Brooklyn, now in charge of the Banking Department. The bank failed over a year ago owing $4,000,000 to depositors. Mr. Goldstein charged "wrongdoing, gross mismanagement and criminal acts," which, he said, the Banking Department neither has sufficient funds nor power to ferret out. Harrison, this afternoon, ran in front of a Public Service construction wagon and was crushed to death.

NEWARK, N. J., June 14.—Frank Blevia, twenty months old, playing in the street in front of his home at No. 109 South Fourth street, Harrison, this afternoon, ran in front of a Public Service construction wagon and was crushed to death.
